

How do I become an Accident Reconstructionist?

Many hours of specialized training along with years of in the field practice are necessary. A good start is to begin your education with schools such as the Institute of Police Technology and Management.